Some facilities at Wright Patman Lake still open for public use

Officials with the Fort Worth District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers are concerned about rumors that Wright Patman Lake is closed to the public for boating and other uses.

Despite excessive rains and severe flooding conditions, the following areas at Wright Patman Lake are still operational and open for public use: Overcup access, Piney Point Park for boat launching, and a portion of spillway park, which is a day use area.

Closed areas are listed below. It is unknown at this time how long these facilities will be impacted by high water levels:

Rocky Point Campground	126 class A sites, group pavilion
Piney Point Campground	48 class A, 44 class B, group pavilion
Half of Spillway Park	Day use
Elliot Bluff Park	Day use
Intake Hill	24 class C camp sites
Northshore	Day use, 65 picnic sites, beach, boat ramp, pavilion
Clear Springs Campground	88 class A sites, two group pavilions
Herron Creek Park	9 class B campsites, day use boat launching
Malden Lake Park	14 class B campsites, day use boat launching
Jackson Creek Park	10 class B campsites, day use boat launching
Oak Park	Day use, 26 picnic sites
